Thumbs Up to the organizers, sponsors and volunteers of Project Rx: A River Remedy, for holding last Saturday's highly successful event that allowed Upstate residents to safely dispose of old or unused medications. And another Thumbs Up to everyone who brought their old drugs to collection sites where the medications could be disposed of in a way that keeps our rivers and streams cleaner and that eliminates the risk of these drugs falling into the wrong hands and being abused. About 1,219 pounds of medication were collected from Upstate residents last weekend.
